HEARST ON CONDITIONS IN EUROPE.
BORAH SAYS SAVE WOODPECKERS AND ELEPHANTS.
GANDHI AND HIS SHAWL.

By Arthur Brisbane

W. R. Hearst, broadcasting on his return from Europe, contrasts foreign insolvency, extending to nations, with our own limited to individuals, while "our nation is sound and solvent." Suggesting that we keep it so, Mr. Hearst reminds Americans that they have "already lost in the cost of war and in the cost of Europe's repudiated war debts more than 38 billion dollars."

He suggests that if we have any money to spend we "send it on the pursuits of peace and for the benefit of our own people."

"In England, backwardness, slow-going conservatism, old-fashioned machines, methods and men are offset to some extent by the modernity of its journalism, a splendid force impelling the nation to progress."

He admires Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, leaders in British journalism, but does not expect important results from the present British governments of compromise.

Senator Borah, reminding the world that armaments cost the world $4,168,000,000 in 1930, suggests that such spending be stopped, for at least five years among all nations, to let the world get its breath, financially.

Senator Borah's pessimism is revealed in his statement, "if we can bring this about, it will be about the only advance we are going to make soon."

The five-year saving suggested by Mr. Borah would amount to almost twenty-one billion dollars, enough to put the world on its feet, if money can do it, but, like individuals, nations get the spending habit and it is hard to break.

This nation could afford to take Senator Borah's advice and set a good example, spending no more than might be necessary to keep its air and submarine defense in line with scientific progress and with other nations.

The hurricane in Belize, capital of British Honduras, destroyed the great Catholic college of Saint John and cost of the lives of many priests in the college.

Fear that other Jesuit fathers may have been killed in missions, far inland, is expressed by Rev. Joseph Geschwend, editor of Jesuit missions.

In days of greater ignorance, faith in divine goodness might have been undermined by such a disaster. When the great Lisbon earthquake killed thousands, including great crowds that gathered in churches for protection many are said to have "turned toward Atheism, losing faith in everything."

It was believed, then, that every earthquake, tidal wave, or lightning stroke, of which some 300,000 occur on earth every day was aimed by an angry god, at somebody, or some nation that had offended.

The present generation knows that the universe is ruled by laws, unchanging, not by a god, sitting, as Jupiter did, on his mountain, with the lightning bolt in his hand, like a savage chief on his throne, holding his sharp spear. "If the camels had a god," said the old Greek, "their god would have four legs and a hump."

Many of us still imagine a god

M.E. CONFERENCE HITS DISCHARGE OF INSTRUCTOR

Condemns Quoting of Professor Herbert Miller At O. S. U.

WILL PLEAD CAUSE OF WAR OBJECTORS

"Time Is Here," Says Report, "to Renounce War System"

(By Associated Press)
LAKEVILLE, O., Sept. 14.—Resolutions condemning compulsory military training, the present economic system and the dismissal of Professor Herbert A. Miller of Ohio State University, were adopted today at the concluding session of the North-east Ohio conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Acting on the report of the social service committee, the conference approved appointment of a committee of 10 to meet a committee of 21 recently appointed by the Ohio conference of the church to plead the cause of conscientious objectors before the board of trustees of Ohio State university.

Miller "Wronged"
Another section of the report declared that the dismissal of Professor Miller was a "flagrant disregard of the principle of speech and frank inquiry after the truth." Professor Miller was dismissed for a speech in which he discussed the Mahatma Gandhi and Indian affairs. The report said Professor Miller had been done a great wrong and called upon Governor George White to right it.

The report also scored the denial of citizenship to Professor Douglas MacIntosh who said he would object to carrying arms if called upon to do so and urged modification of the citizenship law in this respect. The United States supreme court recently upheld the lower court's denial of citizenship to Professor MacIntosh.

Hit War System

"We are convinced the time is here," the report said, "when the Methodist Episcopal church should renounce all future connections with the war system and serve notice on our statesmen and public leaders that in the event of violation of the spirit or word of the Briand-Kellogg treaty, it will neither sanction nor participate in armed conflict."

COUNTY SCHOOL MARK HITS 1,956

Slight Decrease In Enrollment Shown In Preliminary Figures

LISBON, Sept. 14.—In four village schools and one centralized school, 1,956 elementary or grade children were enrolled during the first week of the new school term, and in the same schools the high school enrollment stood at 771. This is a decrease of 33 in the enrollment record of grade schools as shown for the closing term of 1930 and 16 in the high school enrollment.

There were 386 grade and 165 high school children enrolled in the Columbiana schools, and at New Waterford there were 214 grade and 92 in the high school. At Fairfield Centralized school, the record shows 326 grade pupils and 98 in the high school.

Salineville shows 386 grade and 208 high school pupils and for Leetonia the enrollment stood at 624 in the grade classes and 208 in the high school.

At the close of the 1930 term, enrollment records for these same schools showed 1,989 grade children and 755 in the several high schools.

New Harmony school in St. Clair township was not opened this term because there was not sufficient children in that district to warrant a school. The various schools in St. Clair township had an enrollment at the close of the first week school as follows: Bell school, 27; Bloomfield, 71; Fredericktown, 19; Laurel Hill, 33; Grimm's Bridge, 24; Hazel Run, 20; Calcutta, 87.

It is the opinion of County Supt. of Schools H. C. Leonard that enrollment of all schools in the county group will equal the 1930 records within a month.

Charge Dismissed

READING, PA., Sept. 14.—A manslaughter charge against Thomas Vradels, Middletown, O., has been dismissed on recommendation of the district attorney.

The charge resulted from the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Lagan, 71, injured fatally when Vradels' car struck one in which she was riding.

Youth Is Drowned

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14.—Police today were seeking two youths reported to have deliberately tipped a raft resulting in the drowning of Elmer Bailey, 10, in a pond here.

Three other boys on the raft were rescued.

GULFORD ROAD TO BE IMPROVED UNDER NEW LAW

Kirk Instructed by Ohio Highway Bureau To Make Survey

LISBON, Sept. 14.—The state highway department has ordered County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk, who is also a resident engineer for the highway department, to immediately make a survey and prepare plans for the improvement of two and one-half miles of road, or a section of the old Lisbon-Canton state road, extending from the improved highway at the county home to Guilford.

New Road Law

This additional mileage has been assigned to Columbiana county under the recently enacted Smith road law, and is the first to be created in this county under the new act. State Representative R. D. Smith, is the father of the act, which provides for new roads to extend to and through state parks, forests and military reservations. The cost shall not exceed $5,000 per mile.

Division Engineer McKee of New Philadelphia has instructed Surveyor Kirk to proceed with the survey and prepare plans at once, which means that the department will proceed with the grading during the coming fall and winter.

More Mileage Expected

In all probability additional mileage under this law will be assigned Columbiana county next year, as the law provides for the construction of only 50 miles annually. Should this additional mileage be given the county next year then this old state road will be improved to Newgate, and then in 1934 the improvement will be made westward through New Alexandria to tap the concrete highway at Moultrie. The road from Moultrie west to the Columbiana-Stark county line has been improved, and Stark county has also completed the improvement of this highway to the county line.

Duffers Cheer As U. S. G. A. Adds to Golf Ball's Weight

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The United States Golf association has decided to change the so-called "balloon" golf ball, by increasing its weight, Herbert H. Ramsay, president of the association announced today. The change will become effective for play on or after April 15, 1932.

The decision of the golf association, reached less than 10 months after the larger and lighter ball was put officially into play, came as somewhat of a surprise. It is a result, however, of an outpouring of protest that reached its height in the early days of the summer and prompted the U. S. G. A. to undertake an extensive inquiry into conditions.

Apparently this inquiry satisfied President Ramsay and his associates that there were grounds for complaint, especially by the "duffers" struggling to make the "balloon" sphere behave.

Ceremony at Airport Is Climax to Several Years' Romance

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 14.—Aimee McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, whose mother and two children have been married in the last few months, was honeymooning today with Davis L. Hutton, 30-year-old Angelus Temple baritone. They were married on the steps of an airplane in a drizzling rain at Yuma, Ariz. airport about sunrise yesterday by Miss Harriet Jordan, dean of the Angelus Temple Bible school.

Climax of Romance

The wedding, according to the evangelist, came as a climax to a romance of several years' duration. "Mr. Hutton is a splendid man and I know we are going to be happy—gloriously happy," she said. The evangelist became acquainted with Hutton several years ago when he associated himself with Angelus Temple musical activities. He is a music teacher by profession. Recently he appeared as the pharaoh who sat upon a golden throne and sang in the evangelist's sacred opera, "The Iron Furnace."

Tells Her Congregation

The newlyweds flew back to Los Angeles immediately after the ceremony. The evangelist announced the wedding to her congregation at the morning service.

Rolf McPherson, the evangelist's son, and his bride, Lorna Dee, were the witnesses.

Informing of her daughter's marriage, Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy, now conducting an evangelistic campaign at Las Vegas, Nevada, was quoted as saying she was "overjoyed." Mrs. Kennedy and her daughter are estranged. Mrs. Kennedy recently had her marriage to Guy Edward Hudson annulled after a brief honeymoon when it was charged he already was married to another woman.

Roberta McPherson, 20-year-old daughter of the evangelist, several months ago was married to William Bradley Smyth, 23, then pursuer on an around-the-world liner. Rolf's marriage to Miss Smith took place recently.

M. E. DELEGATES ARE SELECTED

Lakeside Conference Balloons on Representatives At Assembly

LAKEVILLE, O., Sept. 14.—Eleven lay delegates of the Northeast Ohio Methodist Episcopal conference to the general assembly in Atlantic City next May, were announced here today.

Lay delegates elected are: W. D. Archer, W. A. Walls, and James Cherry all from Canton; M. C. Robinson, Ashtabula; C. P. Lynch, Lakewood; A. L. Hoover, Lakeside; H. H. Murphy, Painesville; E. A. Beal, Bucyrus; O. S. Beetham, Canfield; G. H. Chamberlain, Elyria and H. E. Hedges, Cleveland.

C. E. Oliver, editor of the East Palestine Daily Leader, H. H. Neptune, Lorain, and Ross Buchanan, Steubenville, were named alternate delegates.

Auto Club Executive Urges Caution As Schools Reopen

Manager A.P. Morris Asks Drivers to Eliminate Traffic Risks

With both public and parochial schools of the city now in operation, Albert P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club, today warned motorists that the return of children to the schoolroom will create new traffic hazards and urged careful driving on the part of every car owner.

Up to the Motorist

Mr. Morris pointed out that the prevention of accidents involving school children is largely within the province of the motorist, and the exercise of caution will go far in reducing the number of deaths and injuries.

"In the vast army of children who will return to the streets enroute to and from school," he said, "will be little ones of five and six years

FIRE LOOMING AS NEW THREAT TO RAZED CITY

Flames Menace Section of Belize, Wrecked By Hurricane

TOLL IS ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN 1,000

More Than 700 Bodies are Buried In Trenches, Dug In Cemetery

(By Associated Press)

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS, Sept. 14.—Fire threatened to complete the destruction of storm and flood today as the work of burying and cremating the dead from last week's hurricane, now estimated at more than a thousand, went forward.

The suburb of Mesopotamia was menaced by flames that spread rapidly in spite of unceasing efforts on the part of soldiers and civilians to block their path. An inflammable liquor warehouse was in the path of the conflagration and fears of an explosion spurred the fighters to frantic measures.

Trenches For Graves

Scores of bodies were burned on five great pyres almost in the center of the once-flourishing city, now in ruins. At least 700 bodies were buried in crude trenches dug in the cemetery by convict labor. Still more bodies floating down river from the interior made an accurate check of the dead impossible. Cremation was resorted to because of the fear of disease.

Squads of volunteer laborers worked under the direction of Honduran soldiers to clear away the tangled wreckage of what once were homes and stores. Business was paralyzed and all manner of activity was subordinated to the work of relief.

Hundreds of those maimed and cut by the fury of the storm were being treated with medical aid rushed by airplane and ship. The U. S. S. Swan and the Sacramento are among the mercy ships on the scene.

Relief Expeditions Arrive

A shortage of food and water was feared for a time but the arrival of relief expeditions partially remedied the situation.

A survey of the city by air showed that not a building was left unmarred. More than a dozen ships were piled up on shore along the waterfront.

About one person in every 14 among the city's population of 16,000 lost his life. Hardly a family was not affected by death or injury.

Missionary Will Give Church Talk

Mrs. Charles Matti, returned missionary from Nanking, China, will speak at a meeting of the Esther E. Baird circle of the First Friends church Tuesday afternoon at the church.

The business session will be at 2:30 and the program will begin at 3 o'clock.

The societies of the Damascus and Winona churches have been invited and the program is open to anyone interested.

Grand Jury To End Its Session Today

LISBON, Sept. 14.—The grand jury, which began deliberations last Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, was still in session today with the prospect, however, of reaching the end of its work tonight.

A number of witnesses were examined this morning.

The jury will inspect the jail this afternoon.

Kerr Welcomes School Teachers

New Superintendent Asks Instructors to "Carry On" In Address at High School Meeting Saturday

An insight into the educational philosophies of their new chief was given Salem public school teachers in an address by Earl S. Kerr, superintendent, at a meeting Saturday afternoon at the high school auditorium.

Pleading with the instructors to "carry on," Kerr outlined plans for the coming 1931-32 school term which opened today. The duties of teacher towards student, the objectives of education and purpose of schools were discussed in the speech.

Kerr was introduced to the teaching body by F. P. Mullins, president of the board of education, who presided.

The new superintendent spoke as follows:

Toll of Leadership

"When you last met it was under the guidance of J. S. Allan. He was your friend; he stood by you through thick and thin; he labored that Salem boys and girls might have the best educational advantages possible. During your recess he was called upon to put aside his work. The loss to Salem schools occasioned by his untimely death will long be felt. I say 'untimely' because American school superintendents are apprehensive of the recent toll exacted for the nerve wracking, relentless pace which leadership in public service now demands.

"I have been asked to take up the working tools which John Allan laid down. In undertaking to carry on for him, I am conscious of the price he paid for his privilege of service. Then too, I am conscious of the high quality of his leadership, for he was my friend. I am sure you will understand that I come to work with you in humility and hope. I come in humility because the theories of education are so varied and the problems of method are in a continuous flux. I come in hope that the well-learned loyalty with which you surround your former leader may deservedly and finally come to me.

"You are more familiar with the traditions and customs peculiar to the Salem schools than I am. It is

VALUE OF FAIR ESSAY SUBJECT

County School Superintendent Announces Student Contest

LISBON, Sept. 14.—County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Leonard today announced a competitive essay contest on the subject, "Value of the County Fair to Agriculture and the Community."

As the county fair opens here Tuesday, essays are to be written from observations of every department, including entertainment features. Those eligible to submit essays are any high school student or any grade student, but each contestant must be among those who have had exhibits either at the county fair or at an independent fair.

The essays are to be judged by a committee of three, one to be appointed by the county superintendent of schools, one by Secretary H. E. Marsden of the county fair and one by the farm bureau or grange.

A silver loving cup valued at $50 is to be awarded the winner of the essay submitted by the high school student and a similar cup to the winner in the grade contest. In addition to the cups, cash prizes of $25 each will be given the winners, and a cash prize of $15 will go to the second place contestants and $10 to each of the third place contestants.

6 Escape Injuries As Autos Collide

Lisbon, Sept. 14.—Six persons escaped unhurt when two automobiles collided Sunday in Lincoln way here.

The automobile driven by Stanley Schwarg of Detroit, struck that operated by John Bruci of New Sheffield, Pa., as Bruci pulled up in front of Schwarg and attempted to turn into a side street.

Mr. and Mrs. Allport and son and daughter were in Schwarg's car.

West Point Man Is Assessed $200 Fine

LISBON, Sept. 14.—John Pushnack, West Point, arrested Saturday by Sheriff W. J. Barlow and Deputies Viriden and Ballantine on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor, today paid a fine of $200 and costs at a hearing before Probate Judge Lodge Riddle.

He pleaded guilty to possession of two and one-half gallons of liquor, wine and beer.

Youth In Hospital

Paul Spell, 17, of Berlin Center, is in Salem City hospital, suffering from lacerations about the face and chest. He was brought to the hospital at 7 p. m. Sunday. His condition is not serious according to reports.

Spell was injured in an automobile accident.

25 PER CENT ON CLAIMS WILL GO TO DEPOSITORS

Certificate of Proof of Claim for Endorsement Required

STATE OFFICIALS PRAISE PROGRESS

No Necessity for Immediate Rush, Bank Aids Here Point Out

Officials of the Citizens Savings bank which was taken over by the state in April for the liquidation of its assets, today announced that a 25 per cent dividend will be paid to depositors of the institution Tuesday.

The 25 per cent dividend represents a fund of approximately $134,000.

Payment by Check

Payment, it was explained, will be made by check.

The checks will be issued at the bank, with each depositor being required to present a certificate of proof of claim for endorsement.

Bank officials today stressed the fact that depositors need not make a concerted rush on the bank. They anticipate that the payment of claims will not be a task of easy proportions and for that reason, have issued an appeal that those depositors who are not in immediate need of this money, withhold their claims for several days.

Dividend in Five Months

More than sufficient money to pay the $134,000 in dividends is on hand and the bank of course will remain open until the 25 per cent dividend is paid on the last claim.

The first dividend payment is being made just five months after the institution was taken over for the liquidation process.

This fact, it is said, has brought expressions of satisfaction, out of the ordinary, from state banking officials.

THREE FLIERS OVER ATLANTIC, ENROUTE TO U.S.

Two Germans, Portuguese Pass Azores On Trip To America

(By Associated Press)
LISBON, Sept. 14.—Two Germans and a Portuguese, each fortified by a jug of water and a loaf of bread among other things, were on a flight from Lisbon to New York today.

Willy Rody, Christian Johansson and Fernando Costa Viega hopped from Juncal Do Sol, about 30 miles from Lisbon yesterday morning at 9:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m. in Salem) and expected to be in America in 40 to 42 hours. They were reported to have passed over the island of Fayal in the Azores at 12:47 p. m. Salem time.

Their plane is a Junkers all-metal, once owned by Charles A. Levine and christened the "Esa" just before the start in honor of Rody's young bride. It was heavily laden with 635 gallons of gasoline and 165 gallons of oil, enough for 48 hours in the air at an average speed of 93 miles an hour. It carried no radio.

Unworried by reports of bad weather over the Atlantic, the fliers made an auspicious take-off with a parting shot "not to let the wind die down."

SQUARING AWAY

Merchants, laboring men and politicians are squaring away for the discussion the coming winter is sure to bring concerning the sales tax. May shadow boxing not engage them to closely to pay attention to business.

The administration, it is believed, will do everything possible to avoid tax boosts. Necessity may cause an about-face from this position later, but for the present it is well defined.

In the administration, however, if it be understood to include the cabinet, there is at least one uncertain factor—Andrew Mellon, who believes that the way to keep the nation's credit intact is to balance the budget by taxation, rather than loans.

One important senator, David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, already has declared for a general sales tax. It is not known just why Mr. Reed has done this, but the possibility that he may be operating a trial balloon for the administration is admissible.

On the whole, the administration is uncertain concerning a sales tax, or any other new or increased tax. It is obliged, whatever happens, to drive always with one eye glued on the political gauge.

Labor and merchants' associations are pretty generally on record as opposed to the sales tax, for various reasons. They argue that it is inequitable and that it penalizes rapid turnovers of merchandise, since it is greater upon many sales with a low profit than upon few sales with a high profit.

Its advocates, on the other hand, have the stronger case, however, because they can point out that the tax is invisible, that it provides a steady revenue, that it is so evenly distributed that no one is penalized, and because they can illustrate how it would work by the present federal sales tax on cigarettes, and state sales taxes on gasoline.

There will be no sales tax in this country unless absolute necessity forces it. It would be far more to the public liking, therefore, if, instead of speculating on ways to raise more money, politicians would set about seriously to save some. When everything has been made ship-shape, when a lot of useless federal bureaus and trumpery have been sheared away, and when economy has come to mean more than a hollow abstraction, the public might possibly be willing to listen to schemes to get more money for the government.

"WE'RE ALL AGREED"

Senator Bulkley's conference with Wayne county farmers settled two things: 1.—Everyone agrees to the proposition that agriculture must be put on its feet, 2.—No one knows how it can be done.

President Hoover thought he had a good idea and appointed a farm board. The farm board thought it had a good idea and incorporated stabilization corporations to buy wheat and cotton with public money. Now, most of the public money is gone, surpluses of wheat and cotton still exist, and the situation is more aggravated than ever.

The Wayne county farmers want no more of the farm board. They are in favor of sending its members home and, it is to be supposed, repealing the agricultural act. Some of them know, no doubt, that the remnants of the western farm bloc will never allow that to happen unless the equalization fee or the export debenture is thrown to them as a sop. The Wayne county farmers do not want these two "ideas" either. It is barely possible that they are beginning to mistrust "ideas." "The farmer had" better hunt his own market and not leave it to the board," one of them declared.

Senator Bulkley, who was on hand to learn what he could at first hand about farmer sentiment in one of the richest agricultural regions of his state, discovered nothing new, unless it might have been the vigorous dissatisfaction Wayne county farmers feel with the way things are being done. He promises that he will do his best to put the farm board out of harm's way and that he will try to vote intelligently on any farm legislation that comes up in the next session of congress.

It is recalled that the mice were all agreed that something should be done about the cat, but that they fell down on the best "idea" offered—tying a bell to the cat's tail. Consequently the cat still prowls noiselessly and the mice try to keep out of her way. That seems to be the farmers' cue until bigger and better "ideas" can be conceived to help them.

What Others Say

READY FOR LEADERSHIP

Labor day speeches throughout the country presented these thoughts:

William Green, president American Federation of Labor: Notwithstanding the nation's difficulties there is a basis for hope and encouragement. The nation's resources are unimpaired. Industrial efficiency is at high point. Granaries are overflowing. Finances as a whole are sound. Political and social institutions are well founded.

William N. Doak, secretary of labor: The United States will stand upon the "substantial plane of prosperity before long." The nation will emerge from present difficulties soon as a "result of the strivings of men of thought and action." The federal government is doing all in its power to restore prosperity.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America: National prosperity is dependent upon high wages and regularity of employment. The economic axis must revolve upon a sound basis of equitable distribution of profits.

Gov. "Alfalfa" Bill Murray of Oklahoma: Primitive man formed government for the protection of the weak. When the citizen is helpless it is the duty of the government to help him, however weak he may be. Good times "around the corner" can not be found with the present falterings of the economic system. There must be a return to the intent of the constitution.

These expressions come from men of different positions of leadership. Their views are different. Their suggested remedies are varied. But in all there is an agreement. It is this. The nation right now has all the tangible and intangible resources required for good times. The resources await the proper directing force. So the Labor day speeches contain much that is assuring.—Toledo Blade.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Diary of a modern Peppy: Up and a telegram from Irvin Cobb to spend the week at his Easthampton estates, which I would rather do than anything I know if it were possible. So calling at Nellie Revell's hotel but she was away and in the lobby came upon Eugene Walter, the playwright.

Walking through 47th at I suddenly discovered my shoes unmade; one brown, one black; and had a palmer turn the brown one black to keep from being twitted at home. Then to a musicale to hear young Ernest Charles sing his own tunes and as talented a young composer as I know.

In the evening to a dinner and John Charles Thomas and his wife there; also Vincent Lopez, with his polish of a Spanish grandee, Leon Leistrin, the dancer, and Aubrey and Peggy Hoyt Edes. Home late and gorged on a tin of imported sardines and a beaker of iced milk.

A psychologist tells me most of the momentous decisions of the world are made by individuals and nations between 10 a. m. and 12 noon. That is the period when human courage is notched highest. Low ebb of indecision is between 4 and 5 in the afternoon. That is the hour, by the way, when many husbands try to decide whether they will have to stay late at the office, etc.

In Wall Street these days, bright young men of the banks and bond houses refer to their particular institution as "the shop." One went a bit further today on the phone. In speaking of his lofty pettiness of little minds. He cannot digest silly jealousies and meannesses so often clinging to those in a groove. Hunt has rounded out perhaps the fullest travel life of any contemporary scribbler, touching port at every civilized country on the globe. Yet he never fails to read his Alexis, Ill., weekly from "Kiver to Kiver."

Personal nomination for the most even tempered writing man in America—Frazier Hunt.

"Spike" Hunt is a sharp example of my firm belief no endeavor begets tolerance like travel. A seasoned globe trotter is invariably detached from the feisty pettiness of little minds. He cannot digest silly jealousies and meannesses so often clinging to those in a groove. Hunt has rounded out perhaps the fullest travel life of any contemporary scribbler, touching port at every civilized country on the globe. Yet he never fails to read his Alexis, Ill., weekly from "Kiver to Kiver."

Few plays are announced for Autumn. Producers are marking time. Usually at this period a hundred or more shows are in preparation. Today there are not 20. The Follies and Vanities seem the outstanding hits.

I stopped in at a Child's, offering all one may eat for 60 cents. The experiment proved an interesting study in mob psychology. Increasing receipts, in instance, 10 percent. It further proved only 15 percent of the public is greedy. The other 85 ate with no greater gusto than when paying for each item. At first, restaurants furnished free carbonate of soda for gluttons but had no calls. The clientele for the most part, when I was there, seemed elderly men down on their luck and young folk obviously out to gourmandize.

A hard back to the good old days in cheaper restaurants and cafeterias is five cent tea, coffee and milk. And, hooray, one chain of others pie a la mode for 10 cents.

Food prices in cafes of the high shots, as a general thing, have been lowered but little. Desserts that were 60 are now 50 cents and a few meats are shaded from $1.50 to $1.30. The excuse is that many cafes are paying boom day overhead and, with depression patronage, to cut prices would close them.

It occurs to me that in all the "wine brick" furor I have yet to hear anyone say it makes a good or bad drink. In the same fashion, it strikes me that, despite its rage, I've seen no one yet—save Helen Menken—who looked chic in Empress Eugenie hat. And my secret survey shows it is on its way out.

Today on the phone a drawing "r" dropping gentleman introduced himself as Major Rutherford Gilford Gilpen of Georgia and so mightily is the power of suggestion that ever since I have been sitting around panting for a mint julep.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, September 15
The general cast of events, according to the day's lunar transits, is fairly fortunate, although there may prove to be some small anxieties in employment and the favorable conditions may be offset by a tendency to pleasure and personal extravagance or excess. Writings and secret agreements may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly favorable year, with gains through writings, secret agreements or affiliations with mergers or secret bodies. But be careful with funds squandered in personal indulgence or extravagance. A child born on this day may be moderately talented, and gain its ends by subtlety, but may imperil its best interests by speculative tendencies, personal indulgence or extravagance.

Notable nativity: Wm. H. Taft, Ex-President United States.

Good Teeth Depend On Diet
Every day, evidence accumulates to prove that good teeth depend almost entirely upon proper diet.

Much experimental work is being done in this field.

No matter where we go we see signs and other advertisements telling us of the importance of proper cleansing of the teeth. Various toothpastes and mouthwashes are advocated to prevent tooth decay.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their tooth-brushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices, and to massage the gums. Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their tooth-brushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices, and to massage the gums. Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

In spite of the increased use of the toothbrush, tooth decay has continued to increase. It is now evident to most dentists and physicians, to all who are interested in this great problem, that cleansing the teeth once or twice a day is not alone sufficient to prevent the spread of decay.

Unless the diet is the proper one, all the care that we can give the teeth will not preserve them. Of course it is not contended that if the diet is correct, it is proper to overlook the daily hygiene of the teeth. Diet and cleanliness should go hand in hand.

Not long ago a series of interesting experiments were started in England and in this country. These experiments, though not done on human beings, gave important information as to the part the diet plays in the care of the teeth.

Vitamin D Plays A Part

As a result of these experiments it was definitely proved that the outer layer of the teeth, which is spoken of as the "enamel," is the layer which resists decay. When there is a poor diet this layer may be destroyed, showing cracks or areas of roughness which allow the decay to enter the deeper parts and to permit infection.

To keep the enamel in proper condition, it is important that the diet should contain sufficient lime, phosphorus and other food elements. There should be plenty of substances yielding vitamin D. This assists in the growth of the teeth and insures strong bone development.

Foods which supply these demands of the teeth are the foods which should be contained in every body's daily diet. They include plenty of milk, butter and eggs. These are the most common foods which give an abundance of this vital element spoken of as vitamin D. Of course there are other foods which will supply this vitamin, and insure good lime development. Such foods as codliver oil, fish oils, suet, butter and egg yolk are highly recommended.

SYNOPSIS

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, has a struggle to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation. The estate of the Winsteads adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, loves Sally, but Sally is in love with Lowndes Jennings. Lowndes jilts Sally for the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she does not love him. Sally becomes Sam's wife in name only and Sam gives Oakleigh back to her as a wedding present. Sam goes abroad and tells Sally she can sue him for her freedom. After Sam leaves Sally discovers that Henry Winstead had not taken advantage of her grandfather, as she believed, but had tried to save him in spite of himself. Henry takes the place of her grandfather in her affections. Henry helps a poor family who had lately moved to the country. The father mistrusts Henry's kindness and, accusing him of ruining his daughter, fires his shotgun at Henry. Henry lies near death for days. Sam has been cabled and is on his way home.

INSTALLMENT 35

LOVE'S REVELATION
Was it her fate to be irrevocably bound to the Winsteads? Sally wondered dully. And at that, suddenly, as though jerked wide awake by an electric shock, she began to tell herself, passionately, that she did not want to be anything but irrevocably bound to the Winsteads. That which had been living half submerged in her consciousness all along, that which had her so restless—the memory of the kiss that Sam had given her at parting, leaped into conscious life, tingling and quivering; it stood vivid and vibrant in her memory. In her heart, and claimed all her attention, demanded all her faculties for itself.

She sat in the downstairs hall, for the time being alone, for Joe, his message delivered, had rushed back to his work. Her knees were buckling under her, and fire danced before her eyes, as the realization of the incredible truth overwhelmed ed her. She couldn't evade nor deny—back of all calm thinking was the knowledge, the surety, the conviction that she didn't intend to take any action or make the slightest move to free herself. She would not leave Henry, she would not leave Winstead. Sam Winstead . . . her husband . . . was coming back home . . . and she wasn't going . . . she couldn't leave . . . because she loved Sam Winstead. She loved Sam Winstead! The truth crashed upon her, shaking her to the depths.

"Dear child . . . my daughter . . . Sally."

When it had stolen upon and conquered her, she couldn't say. Perhaps it had insensibly begun when he gave her Oakleigh. She had been shaken and dazzled then she recalled, by the sheer generosity of him.

How much he had given her she had learned; and what the Winsteads were and meant, she had learned. It was no light honor to bear his name, to reign as mistress in his house, to be daughter-in-law to Henry . . . and wife to him. She was conscious of a thrilling rush of joy, of pride, of gratitude—until she remembered Henry, lying upstairs, within the murky valley of the shadow.

But she questioned herself, had Sam's patience given out? Would he want her to go now? Had she lost him? Had his pride been outraged too greatly? Her heart stood still. Sam was coming home. Would he claim her as she was now? she wondered, trembling. O God, don't let her lose him now! Let Sam love her! Don't let her lose him, just when her own heart had been unveiled to her.

A white clad figure came noiselessly down the stairs in search of her. The nurse bent over her.

"Mr. Winstead is conscious," she whispered. "He is asking for you. She hurried back upstairs to her post, but Sally reached his door before her and slipped into his room to find the doctors grouped beside his bed. He was staring about wildly, and gave a pitiful pale smile of satisfaction at sight of her. She took his hand, she hung above him, scanning his face with terrified eyes. Ah! Was this the end? Would Sam come too late?

"Sam . . ." he murmured. "Sam is coming, darling. Sam is on his way," she told him. "Sally," he made a motion, and the others drew out of earshot. "Come closer." She slipped to her knees, bending her head toward him. A thin, weak hand fell on her bowed head. "Sally . . . daughter . . . what is wrong?" he breathed. "Wrong?" She raised her head and stared at him. Her heart fell to hammering.

"Why . . . did Sam . . . go?" "She pressed his hand against her cheek, and then she held it against her lips.

"Father . . . father . . . he thought he had to. And I let him go . . . because I didn't know. I didn't know!"

"Doesn't Sam love . . . you?" "Yes, yes."

"Don't you . . . love my son . . . daughter?" "Darling, yes, yes, yes," she wept. "O father yes. More than I can say."

"When Sam comes home . . ." "When Sam comes home," she whispered unflinchingly, "he must find us both waiting for him, father."

"Dear child . . . my daughter . . . Sally."

"Your loving daughter, dear, father."

"I knew . . . something was wrong. It worried me. It will be all right . . . when my . . . my boy comes back?" A little frown of anxiety puckered his brow.

"It will be all right, father. When your boy . . . my husband . . . comes home . . . his wife will be waiting for him. His wife who loves him."

Henry smiled. His look upon her was benignant. But he was so mortally weak that he couldn't help falling asleep.

Then he was more often conscious, and for longer intervals. His mind was clear again. When he woke up his eyes always sought for his daughter, and a frown of unease twisted his brows if he didn't discover her near him. He wanted Sally with him, seemed easier in his mind when she was by to touch him, to look at him with her brown eyes.

When he roused and saw her in her place he would smile wanly, make a weak effort to touch her, and whisper "Sally!" as if the mere calling of her name, the mere sight of her, gratified him intensely.

"Sally!" he breathed one morning.

"Yes, dear father, what is it?" "Sally, you must, promise you will never leave me."

"Foolish father! When he knows he couldn't drive me away from him!" said she tenderly.

"I love you so much . . . daughter," he whispered wistfully. "It frightens me to think of waking up . . . and not finding you. I want you to be happy—but I want you to be near me—always."

"I am happy when I am with you . . . at Winsteads, father," she reassured him tenderly.

"You are quite sure, Sally?" "Quite sure, darling. All my heart is here."

"I was uneasy . . . I feared . . . Sally, I wish Sam were home. I wish Sam would come home!"

"He is on his way, dear. He will be here very soon. Joe Dixon is in constant touch with him through wireless," she comforted.

"I want to see him . . . my son," said the sick man. "I wake up with his voice singing in my ears. And then . . . he isn't here." He finished with a sigh.

"But he will be here very soon now dear. Have patience just a little longer!" she tried to smile, gallantly.

"You are really helping him wonderfully, Mrs. Winstead," the doctors encouraged her. "We depend a great deal on you. But we fear it is a great tax on you."

"The only real strain on me is when I sit helpless, not doing anything for him," she told them. And she asked: "Please tell me the truth. Is he at all improved?"

"We would like to say yes, but, truthfully, we are not sure," one of them told her. "Venturing my own opinion, I should say he has a fighting chance." The doctor was sorry for young Mrs. Winstead, whom his patient adored, and who was so devoted to him.

But it seemed to Sally, torn between hope and fear, that the clasp of Henry's fingers on hers was just a little stronger, ever so slightly stronger; that his fluttering voice was not quite so faint.

"Have you heard from Sam this morning?" he asked her. "I have been waiting to hear, ever since I woke up."

Surely his voice was stronger this morning! Why, then, should the two doctors in attendance still look grave and watch him so narrowly?

"No, not yet. But Joe is expecting word from him every minute now." And she dropped on her knees by the bedside, holding his hands. The doctors watched Henry over her brown head. "A little more patience, darling. Sam will soon be here."

Somebody ran up the steps and came in through the upper hall with hasty footsteps. The door was opened quickly. A tall young man, with a mop of very bright hair, and very blue eyes in a face grown white and anxious, stood in the room.

She was kneeling, holding Henry's hand, against her cheek, when she raised her brown eyes and saw the newcomer, and her heart began to leap and race. Her eyes flew over him devouringly, and he seemed taller, his eyes unnaturally large in his white face. He had eyes only for the pallid face on the pillow, and he stared with terror.

"Dad! Dad!" he cried in a voice of agony. "Dad!"

Henry drew a long breath, as of joy and relief. "Hello, Sam!" said he, and collapsed. (Copyright, 1931, By Marie Conway Oemler.)

The larger woman requires a house frock which is loosely comfortable, and yet which does not look as if comfort were its only requirement. This one is designed with short sleeves for ease in reaching, a skirt slightly flared for plenty of width, and a waistline vaguely defined by a belt. The curved skirt line and a diamond shaped insert on the bodice are both features that create an illusion of slenderness. Printed cotton, linen, or one of the durable rayon fabrics would make up attractively in this model.

Sizes 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 40 requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

THE NEW FALL CATALOG is now ready. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kid-dies' clothes. Also delightful gift suggestions in accessory and transfer patterns.

Stark Reality in This "Movie"

A real crime drama is being depicted in action and sound here. District Attorney Geoghan, of Kings County, New York, is the director and the title might be "Confession of a Murderer." As the "talkie" and motion picture apparatus is operated, Elton C. Wing is telling how he was with Gordon Hamby when the latter is said to have killed two bank employees. Left to right, seated, in this reel of real life, are Assistant District Attorney William Kleinman, Wing and Geoghan. Standing, left to right, are Detective Charles Hemminger and Assistant District Attorney Fred Kopf, completing the "cast."

MARKETS
HEAVY SELLING
DULLS MARKET

Losses Range from 1 To 4 Points In More Active Shares

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—After heavy selling in the first half hour as weekend liquidating orders were executed, the stock market turned dull today but prices showed little recuperative power. Losses ranged from 1 to 4 points in the more active shares.

Aside from a drop of 8 points in Auburn and nearly 5 in American Tobacco, there were 4 point breaks in Union Pacific and Allied Chemical and declines of 3 to 3 1/2 in Case, Delaware and Hudson and McKeesport. U. S. Steel went to new low of 78 1/2, off 2 1/2, and then rallied fractionally at their lowest quotations American Telephone, Atchafalaya, Eastman, North American, Missouri Pacific preferred, Norfolk & Western Lackawanna and corn products sold 2 to 2 1/2 under Saturday's close. General Electric reacted to the new low of 34 1/2, off 3/4.

Sales in the first half hour amounted to approximately 500,000 shares, but the volume had diminished appreciably by noon. Call money renewed at 1 1/2 per cent.

KERR WELCOMES TEACHING STAFF

New Superintendent Asks Instructors To Carry On

therefore useless for me to speak along that line. If I may in a few words dwell upon some underlying philosophy, perhaps we may quickly arrive on common ground. To cast aside the nomenclature of the psychologist, let us say we are here to lead the children of Salem along paths of desirable growth. In no sense are our positions created for us or by us. Our work is an answer to the plain call of service to childhood. There is no more important work in the world.

The Right To Know

"Every pupil of the Salem public schools has a right to know what he is expected to do. He has a right to a clear understanding of the nature of the task set before him. Every pupil has a right to know how he is to perform his task. It is the business of good teaching leadership to point the way, no matter whether it be the simple copying of a letter or the procedure of an experiment in physics. Then every pupil has a right to know when he is to perform an assigned task. The time element in a pupil's program of activity is an important factor. To ask too much is to discourage; to ask too little is to encourage mental sluggishness. To time the pupil's work wisely is to make him happy. I trust these three requirements of good teaching sound like common sense, for by the observance of them teachers render their best service.

"In the days to come I hope to bring assistance where help is needed. I hope both principals and teachers will feel free to bring their problems to me, for while I claim no monopoly on the field of education, I am conscious of a speaking acquaintance with the subject. Perhaps the more you confine shop talk to your profession, the more smoothly the machinery of public education will run.

For Those In Need

"As we enter upon the school year, our people are in the throes of economic depression. Perhaps Salem is more fortunate than many communities, but at best there will be those who are in need. Wherever teachers come into contact with distress, we urge that every effort be made to bring assistance. More often than not this will mean drawing the case to the attention of the relief organizations of the community. Most deserving people are sometimes the last to ask for help. Such a time as this is at once a challenge and an opportunity.

"As we look forward to the school year it is one of joy in service. We trust that you have come with fresh vigor to spend your best efforts in leading the boys and girls of Salem."

Crusader Chief

Declaring that a revision of the Volstead Act would put 1,500,000 men to work and create a market for surplus farm products, Fred J. Clark, Commander-in-Chief of the Crusaders, a nation-wide Anti-Prohibition organization, urges that the Act be repealed or revised before the coming of winter. Mr. Clark predicts that the revision of the Volstead Act will be followed by repeal of the 18th Amendment.

SALEM GRID STATISTICS
HOLD OUTSTANDING RECORD

A record of 41 victories, eight defeats and three tie games is held by teams representing the Red and Black of Salem High in football during the past five years. It is a record that stands unequalled in all of Northeastern Ohio and surpassed by few schools throughout the state.

More than four defeats were sustained by a team here in only one season since 1917. That record came in 1927 when the school's griders had their worst season in years, winning only three games during a hard schedule of nine contests. In all other of the 13 years records of distinction were attained.

Glance over the school's record

Year	Won	Lost	Tied
1921	4	4	1
1922	8	2	0
1923	6	4	0
1924	4	4	0
1925	5	2	2
1926	10	0	0
1927	3	5	0
1928	9	2	0
1931	?	?	?

In Coach Floyd Stone's three seasons with Salem High griders have won 28 games, lost only three and tied two. It is a record of development of successful football squads that is really outstanding. Stone, with his aide, Frank P. Lewis, hopes to continue the production of great grid teams here during the 1931 campaign.

While we are on the subject of football statistics, here are a few records, some of which it will be possible for the 1931 team to better, that have been compiled by teams in the past:

MOST VICTORIES in one season—11 in 1929, team captained by Glenn Whinnery; 10 in 1926, captain—Lester Older.

HIGHEST TOTAL points a season—266 in 1922, Coach Douglas Vivian; captain—Newton Stirling.

In 1927—237—Coach—Wilbur J. Springer; captain—Lester Older.

HIGHEST INDIVIDUAL total—season—Ed Beck, 1930, 121 points; 20 touchdowns, one point after touchdown.

HIGHEST SCORE—single game—Salem 96 Carrollton 0 in 1915. In 1930—Salem 86 Lettman 0.

HIGHEST SCORE by opponents—Massillon 61 Salem 0 in 1923. Youngstown South 51 Salem 0 in 1916.

MOST SHUTOUTS a season—in season of 1899 when Salem High won nine consecutive victories, scoring 176 points to opponents none.

MOST DEFEATS a season—1916, won one, lost nine. In 1917—won two, lost seven. These years recorded as worst two seasons in Salem football history.

They still insist on selecting all star teams. An unknown contributor, submits the following:

FIRST TEAM—M. Schuller c, Christen and Early p; Scott lb, Kelley 2b, F. Scullion 3b, M. Sartick ss, Borton rss, C. Scullion, Sanders and Fitzpatrick cf.

SECOND TEAM—Rafferty c, Miller and Bard p; Myers lb, Corso 2b, Clem Scullion 3b, R. Konnert ss, Veen rss, Miller, Debnar and Melow cf.

There's another fan wishes to be heard from too.

FIRST TEAM—M. Sartick, c, Early and Miller p, C. Scullion lb, Kelley 2b, F. Scullion ss, Dorcheck 3b, F. Schuller rss; Fitzpatrick, Sanders, T. Seeds cf.

SECOND TEAM—M. Schuller c, Christen and McPeely p; Myers lb, Corso 2b, Clem Scullion 3b, R. Konnert ss, Veen rss, Miller, Debnar and Melow cf.

TOBIES CAPTURE VERDICTS IN TWO WEEKEND TILTS

Oppose Leaders In Twin-Bill Under Lights At Reilly Stadium

MULLINS DROPS 6-5 VERDICT SATURDAY

Miller's Pitching Feature Of Double Victory; Series Planned

Winning their second and third consecutive victories in two well played contests at Centennial park field Saturday, the United Cigars advanced into a tie for second place in the Salem Softball league and earned the right to battle the Salem Hardware for the second half championship in a doubleheader scheduled at Reilly athletic stadium tonight.

Miller Hurl's Victories
With Eddie Miller hurling a superb brand of ball the Tobies vanquished the Salem China company, 3-0 in Saturday's opener then continued their titular campaign by trimming the first half championship Mullins Foremen's club, 6-5. Six runs were scored in the first inning of the Mullins game to give the Cigars the victory.

Miller held the Potters to two hits, it being his second straight shutout. Friday evening he had defeated the Kwanis club, allowing only one hit. Against the Mullins he was touched for eight hits but was given sensational support in pinches.

Two Games Tonight

Two games will be played with the Hardware under the Reilly stadium floodlights tonight, the first being slated to start at 7:30. The Hardware needs only to win one of the two contests to win the second half title while the Tobies must annex both decisions to annex the crown.

The Hardware, by virtue of its superior play all through the second-half, is heavy favorite to trim the Tobies in at least one of the two frays. The team then is booked to clash with Mullins in the first game of the annual championship series at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Two games will be played in the series at the athletic field Wednesday night to officially bring the 1931 softball season, the most successful in history here, to a close.

Due for An Early Fall This Year

In a pose more suggestive of swimming than of football, Charlie Black, a backfield candidate for the Georgia Tech varsity grid squad, is shown in an attempt to hurdle the form of M. It would appear that Black's steeplechase is doomed to failure, as Goldsmith, who is seeking a place on the Georgian eleven, seems to have nailed him by the ankle.

SOX WORK HARD FOR TWO GAMES IN FOUR STARTS

Three of Them Are Carried Into Extra Innings

BY HUGH S. FULERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer

The American league has teams that are better than the Chicago White Sox and a few that are even less successful, but there is none to dispute the Sox claim of working harder than any other team for victories.

Chicago played four games on Saturday and Sunday, struggling through 46 innings, and the best they could get out of it was two victories. The second game of each doubleheader ended in a tie. After beating the New York Yankees in 13 innings Saturday, they played a ten inning 13-13 tie before darkness stopped them. Yesterday Chicago won the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 5, in the opener behind Red Faber's effective relief pitching.

The Sox's effective relief pitching, then went 14 frames to a 2-2 draw. The Massachusetts Sunday law finally halted the struggle.

Yanks Work Hard, Too

The New York Yankees come closer than any other team to threaten Chicago's long distance record. After the two overtime battles with the White Sox, the Yanks played a third extra inning game in the first half of yesterday's doubleheader, going twelve frames to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1.

Lou Gehrig's 43rd homer of the season made it possible for the Yanks to win the second game in nine innings, 4 to 3.

Alvin Crowder gave Washington an easy triumph over Cleveland in the remaining American league game. Crowder allowed Cleveland only six hits and made three himself to win, 7 to 1. Philadelphia and St. Louis were idle.

Chicago's Cubs provided the big thrill of the National league program although the St. Louis Cardinals took another long step toward clinching the pennant. The Cubs won the first game from the Boston Braves, 11 to 7, when Man Rogers Hornsby went in as a pinch hitter in the eleventh and clouted a home run. Guy Bush completed the strong of five straight victories that established the Cubs firmly in third place when he pitched his second one-hit game of

Champions Past and Present

Seven times national champion and considered the greatest tennis player of modern times, William "Big Bill" Tilden is pictured above on the side lines at Forest Hills, L. I., watching the battle between Johnny Doe, 1930 champion, and Frank Shields in the quarter finals. With Tilden is young Jackie Behr, national boys' champion, who perhaps is wondering if he will ever be as good as his famous companion.

VINES' VICTORY REVIVES HOPES FOR CUP RETURN

Pasadena Youth, Defeating Lott, Is Hailed As New Tilden

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—American Davis cup common, which touched a new low this summer when the American team failed to get as far as the challenge round has rebounded sharply as a direct result of the spectacular rise to the top of the tennis heap of 19-year-old Ellsworth Vines.

When Vines conquered George Lott in a brilliantly-fought four-set duel to win the national singles title Saturday, tennis experts hailed Vines as another Tilden and lost no time in calculating American chances in the Davis cup campaign next year. The net result was the rather general prediction that the cup, in all probability, would return to this side of the Atlantic within the next two years.

Vines, at 19, already plays in a style that is more than vaguely reminiscent of his Bill Tilden when the tall Philadelphian ruled the amateur heap. The Pasadena youngster, six feet two and one-half inches tall, has a full repertoire of strokes and the knowledge of how to use them.

The 1932 cup campaign still is far distant, but there should be no lack of material with such figures as Vines, Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, Lott, John Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, probably available. Vines' victory over Lott in the national championship finals was earned on merit alone for Lott, playing perhaps the best singles of his career, made few mistakes. The Philadelphian won the opening set at 9-7, but could not cope with Vines' blistering drives and the Californian won the next three 6-3, 9-7, 7-5, and with them the match and title.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

HOMEMAKING NEEDS

SMALL SPACE DRYERS
Washing in my little apartment isn't so bad, but where on earth can I hang my things to dry? I demand the business woman who finds she has a bit of washing to do every night. Silk stockings, of course, should be cleaned immediately after removal. It makes them last twice as long. And delicate lingerie requires careful handling, such as most women prefer to give themselves rather than risk rips and tears.

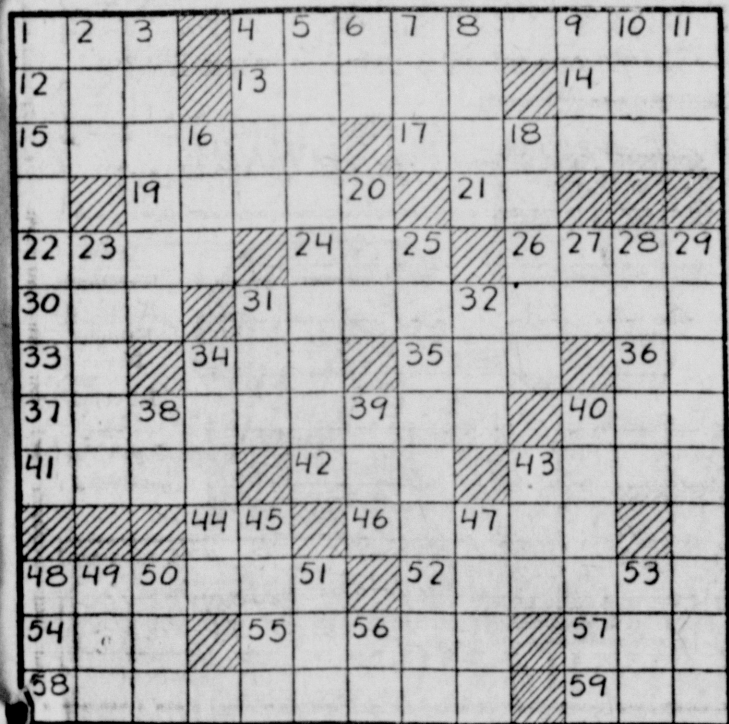

Smaller overhead dryers are a convenience in the little apartment, they can be hung in kitchen, if any, or otherwise in the bathroom. They consist merely of a row of slender poles fastened together, rack fashion, and they can be raised completely, to an inch or so of the ceiling when not in use or left a foot or more beneath in order to permit air circulation for drying. Such racks should be kept as near a window as possible, and if there's ventilation, so much the better. Another tricky new device is the combination kitchen stool and dryer. It's the kind of high stool one uses at a kitchen table, but it could be kept in a bathroom if the apartment is one of those kitchenless types. It looks like an ordinary stool, but, when necessary, six metal arms can be pulled out from under the seat. These reach out quite a distance, in fact, the total is equivalent to over 30 feet of hanging space.

Clothes can be hung on this and left overnight, or if the business woman is absent all day, there's no objection to their remaining to dry somewhere near the sunlight. This is the complete concealment, of great advantage to this contrivance hanging racks when they are not actually in use. Which is rather important to the small apartment dweller who aims to keep quarters absolutely tidy, with no hint of the mechanics of housekeeping in evidence.

Today's Pattern

There is an austere simplicity to the new mode that brings the cut of the sleeve and the line of the neck into prominence. On this model the V-shaped contrasting draped vestee is outlined with smart revers, and the long sleeves are gracefully widened by adding flares. Slender lines are given the skirt by slanting seamings and a narrow front panel. You'll like printed or plain satin, canton, flat crepe or velvet for this style.

Pattern 2220 is obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3 1/4 yards of 39 inch fabric one-half yard contrasting. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

The new fall catalog is now ready. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kid's clothes. Also delightful gift suggestions in accessory and transfer patterns.

This pattern will be delivered upon receipt of 15c. coin or stamps, carefully wrapped. Latest Fashion Book 15c. Send all orders to SALEM NEWS PATTERN DEPARTMENT, 243 WEST 17TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

PEIPING—A battle royal has started between women school teachers in Kaifeng, Honan, and male principals of the schools, who have "fired" all women. Some principals declare the women teachers pay more attention to love affairs than to teaching. The women indignantly deny the charge, declaring the principals want to find places for male relatives.

Victim on Yacht Piracy Scene

Reenacting the scene aboard the yacht Penguin for the benefit of the investigators, Mrs. Benjamin Collings is shown above (white dress) with her sister-in-law Helen F. Collings, seated on the edge of the boat from which her husband was mysteriously kidnaped by gunmen in Long Island Sound. Mrs. Collings was turned adrift in an open boat by the desperadoes and her little daughter Barbara left alone on the yacht when they abandoned it. The Collings' home is in Stamford, Conn.

THEATER Attractions

"THE LAST FLIGHT" a picture with a super fine cast and an excellent plot is the main attraction on the State theater's bill today.

Richard Barthelmess is the star of the production. Supporting him are David Manners, Helen Chandler, John Mack Brown, Elliot Nugent and Walter Byron.

This story, adapted from "Nikki and Her War Birds" by John Monk Saunders, deals with the experiences of four war-torn aviators who drift about from bar to bar in Paris, finally joining with a lone, some and lovely lady, whose mysterious past intrigues them as much as her mysterious present.

Barthelmess, as the leader of this happy-go-lucky band, portrays a young man who cannot get over the excitement of his wartime experiences, but is forever seeking thrills to take its place. It is the exact situation that thousands of war veterans found themselves occupying at the close of the World War, and Barthelmess' portrayal of this character role—the comedy and romance—are ruffled with the right undertone of tragedy. The supporting cast is especially fine.

AT THE GRAND

"MOTHER'S MILLIONS" is the attraction today at the Grand theater.

This picture from the original stage play of the same name by Howard McKent Barnes, is delightfully enacted by a splendid cast headed by May Robson, who won fame on the legitimate stage in the same role. Others in the cast are James Hall, Frances Dade, Lawrence Gray and Edmund Breese.

Miss Robson gives a grand performance as the penurious woman financial giant whose one thought is for the future welfare of her children but who apparently treats them with the same harshness and ruthlessness that she uses on her Wall Street rivals.

The story briefly deals with the trials and tribulations of the son and daughter of the richest woman in the world. The girl is eagerly sought in marriage by men of wealth and fortune hunters. The boy is a mark for his mother's greatest rival, for the mother is a dominating figure in Wall Street, a tyrant in her own home, sedulously endeavoring to bring up her children to be self-reliant, and to educate them in the school of life so that they can retain and enjoy the heritage of wealth which she will leave them.

Here for Visit

Affectionately remembered by theatre goers of a few years ago as Kitty Gordon, the Hon. Mrs. Henry Beresford is shown above on her arrival in New York for a visit. Mrs. Beresford spent the summer at her English estate.

COLUMBIANA

The sixth broadcast in the series over station WKBN, Roundstone, program consisting of violin solos will be given Thursday noon, the by Harry Hetzel and chorus singing by Mesdames F. E. Griffen, D. H. Hepburn, Clarence Shontz, C. R. Todd, Solon Morris and Nettie Fessler, with Mrs. E. T. Coyle as accompanist.

Rev. C. E. Krumm and Charles Esswein left Sunday afternoon for Buffalo, where they will represent the local Lutheran church at the regular convention of the American Lutheran church, Sept. 14 to 18, in the Trinity Old Lutheran church.

Sept. 20 will be observed as the annual Harvest Home Sunday at Grace Reformed church. The Sunday school classes taught by Mrs. Elmer May and Elmer Sittler will have charge of the decorations.

The Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the church.
